A prolonged period of heavy rain this weekend is expected to lead to some flooding and travel disruption

What to expect

- Flooding of a few homes and businesses is likely
- Spray and flooding is likely to lead to difficult driving conditions and some road closures
- Where flooding occurs, there is a chance of delays or cancellations to train and bus services
- There is a small chance that some communities will become cut off by flooded roads
- There is a slight chance of power cuts and loss of other services to some homes and businesses

Further details

A slow-moving weather front is expected to lead to a prolonged spell of heavy rain during Saturday afternoon and persisting through much of Sunday before clearing south into the start of next week. Whilst there is still some uncertainty in the duration of the rainfall, there is a chance that 75-125 mm could fall fairly widely with 150-175 mm possible in a few places over higher ground. Strong southwesterly winds will accompany this prolonged rainfall.

If so, consider preparing a flood plan and an emergency flood kit.

Give yourself the best chance of avoiding delays by checking road conditions if driving, or bus and train timetables, amending your travel plans if necessary.

People cope better with power cuts when they have prepared for them in advance. It's easy to do; consider gathering torches and batteries, a mobile phone power pack and other essential items.

Be prepared for weather warnings to change quickly: when a weather warning is issued, the Met Office recommends staying up to date with the weather forecast in your area.
